FITTING TYPE TO COPY

BY THE CHARACTER COUNT METHOD

● COUNTING CHARACTERS is the most accurate of all methods used in properly fitting type to copy. By this practical method, type computation becomes a simple and interesting procedure. The tables on the following pages give the character count for Intertype faces and will help solve copyfitting problems quickly and accurately.

● THESE TABLES show the name of the face, point size, length of lowercase alphabet in points, number of characters in one pica and the number of characters in all measures from 10 picas up to 30 picas.

● WIDTH OF LINE in picas is shown in bold figures at the top of each page. When the measure is more than 30 picas double two measures to make the equivalent of the measure desired. For instance, if a 46-pica width is to be computed simply add the figures under the 22-pica width and the 24-pica width.

● TYPICAL EXAMPLE

There are 20 lines of typewritten copy, 58 characters to the line, to be set in 14 point Egmont, 2-point leaded, 18 picas wide. How many lines of type will it make?

(1) Find number of characters in copy. To do this determine the number of characters in an average length line, counting every space and mark of punctuation as a character. Then multiply by the number of lines. In the example given there are 58 characters in an average line. Multiplied by 20, this shows a total of 1160 characters.

(2) Refer to Egmont Table (14-point size) on page 10. Under the 18-pica measure is shown figure 41 which is the number of characters in a line set in this measure. The total characters in copy (1160) divided by the number of characters to a line of type (41) shows a total of 28 lines with 12 characters left over, or 29 lines of type.

(3) To find depth of type area multiply the number of type lines (29) by body size plus leading (14 plus 2 points for leading equals 16) and divide by 12, the number of points in a pica. Thus, $29 \times 16 = 464 \div 12 = 38\frac{2}{3}$ picas in depth.

For type faces not contained in these tables consult the table shown on pages 18 and 19, which gives the character count for various alphabet lengths. If the exact alphabet length desired is not shown, use the next larger alphabet size. Refer to the Book of Intertype Faces for length of lowercase alphabets.
